It's Doc Krohn – The photograph published July 31 in Mountain Moments in History has been identified by long time Coarsegold resident Ray Reull as the home of his stepfather, G. A. "Doc" Krohn. On the front steps are Mr. Krohn and his first wife, Belle. The Krohn family has long been associated with the development of Coarsegold. The home, considerably added to, still stands in the town.

Dear Mr. Albach:

Thank you for sending us the picture of the house in Coarsegold. As you can see by the enclosure, we published it along with our weekly Mountain Moments In Time column and are happy to report that the couple and the house were identified.

Ray Reull, who recalled that your mother was his teacher in school, identified the people as G. A. "Doc" Krohn and his first wife Belle. Mr. Reull was Doc Krohn's stepson. The house still stands along Highway 41, just south of the Standard Oil yard. It has been added to since the photo was taken.

Thanks for sharing this moment in history with us.

Sincerely yours,

Enclosed is a picture I believe my mother may have used when she did publicity for the Coarsegold rodeo. My mother was Margaret Brown & taught 1-4th at Coarsegold.

Dad is Oakhurst recently and mentioned the picture to 2 women of the Historical Society who were doing rubbings in the cemetery for the museum. They suggested someone in the Historical Society might know who the picture subjects are & where the picture was taken. I have made a copy & it is enclosed. I do not want the copy back but would appreciate any information anyone has.

Sincerely
